Project Goal: What are you trying to accomplish or learn with this project? How will you learn or develop or grow by doing this project?

Possible Sources: What resources (books, websites, people, magazines, etc.) can you use to learn more about your Personal Project? How will they help you complete your Personal Project? List specific sources and not general ideas for a source.

SOURCE	HOW WILL IT HELP

Plan of Action: What steps will you take to complete your Personal Project (DUE MARCH 26)?

How long will it take you to complete each step? By when will you complete each step? Keep in mind that sometimes you can work on more than one step at a time. For example, if you are tutoring a middle school student in math, you can start to meet with them and begin to improve their math skills. At the same time, you can interview teachers to get their ideas on the best way to connect with a middle school student and read online articles about running an effective tutoring session.

Baseline: If your Project involves improving a skill, you must get a baseline, where your skill is currently, so that you have a way to track your growth over the course of the project. If you are improving your free throws, record what percentage of free throws you currently make and record yourself shooting free throws so that you have a record of your form. If you are tutoring someone in math, record how accurate they are with their current math skills. If your baseline is a video or recording, include a description of the baseline here.
